WELCOME AND MAY GOD BLESS US ALL!

The Fifteenth Sunday After Pentecost

First Reading: Genesis 50:15-21
Comment: "Joseph reconciles with his brothers."

In our sequential Hebrew scripture lesson, Joseph's brothers fear his wrath upon learning of the death of their father Jacob. It could be that Joseph will seek vengeance for the wrong done to him now that Jacob is no longer able to intercede on their behalf. The brothers manufacture a story and plead for mercy. Joseph tearfully and warmly reassures them that he intends only their good and the well-being of their families.

Psalm 103:8-13
A hymn of blessing in thanksgiving for healing forgiveness and for all the Lord's acts of compassion and justice.

Second Reading (The Epistle): Romans 14:1-12
Comment: "When brothers and sisters judge each other"

In this reading, Paul calls upon the Roman disciples to live with tolerance for one another's scruples, recognising that everything can be done to honour the Lord with whom each Christian has a relationship. Especially should those who are strong and untroubled in their consciences respect the attitudes of the weak in matters such as observing certain days and eating meat. It is possible that there was tension in the Roman church between liberal Gentile Christians and more scrupulous Jewish Christians. God, Paul reminds them, is the one to whom final answer must be given, and the risen Christ is Lord of all.

THE HOLY GOSPEL: Matthew 18:21-35
Comment: "A parable of forgiveness"

In the Gospel lesson Jesus bids his disciples to offer a forgiveness which is, for all practical purposes, unlimited, and he tells a parable about a man who, although forgiven much, still himself had no mercy. Jesus has extended to all manner of people God's amazingly generous offer of acceptance in the kingdom. Those who have been so forgiven must show mercy to others. Their own forgiveness may otherwise be revoked.
