The Fourth Sunday after the Epiphany

First Reading: Deuteronomy 18:15-20

Comment: "The prophet speaks with God's authority"

In our opening reading, Moses promises the people that, after his death, God will raise up another prophet for them. The people cannot face God directly but need an intermediary to speak God's words. To him they must listen, for the false prophet who presumes to speak in the Lord's name will die. In later centuries, this oracle was interpreted to mean that God would raise up one final prophet to succeed Moses. Some early Christians believed Jesus to be this new Moses.

Psalm 111

A song of praise to the mighty and awesome Lord, who is steadfast and full of compassion.

Second Reading (The Epistle): 1 Corinthians 8:1-13

Comment: "Limits to liberty: the case of food offered"

In this lesson, Paul gives counsel to the Corinthians who are unsure whether it is permissible to eat the meat of animals that have been sacrificed in pagan temples. Since there is only one true God, such sacrifices are really meaningless, and the meat can be eaten in good conscience. Yet this understanding of the issue must not be treated as superior knowledge with respect to those whose consciences are still troubled. Out of love it is better for those who believe themselves enlightened to avoid eating such meat than to encourage weaker members to do what they regard as sinful and so perhaps to be led back into paganism.

The Holy Gospel: Mark 1:21-28

Comment: "The healing of one with an unclean spirit"

In our gospel Jesus both teaches and acts with authority. His teaching was more than interpretation of the law. It was a proclamation of the new possibilities of God's kingdom. He backed his words with his actions. Unclean spirits recognised him and submitted to his power to deliver a man from his disorder.
